The Military at YYJ: Helicopters and Jets

443 Maritime Helicopter Squadron is the west coast operational CH-148 Cyclone Squadron.

While 443 Squadron is part of 12 Wing Shearwater (Nova Scotia), its home base is in Patricia Bay, British Columbia. It provides helicopter air detachments known as HELAIRDETs in support of the Royal Canadian Navy (RCN) Pacific Fleet based in Esquimalt, B.C. These HELAIRDETs frequently embark on Canadian warships for training and operations both at home and abroad.

When not embarked, you will often hear and see 443 Sqn helicopters doing training on the airfield, in the air and over the sea in the area as well as transiting on their way to other training locations. 443 Sqn can and does occasionally hold standby for Air and Sea Search and Rescue (SAR), should the primary assets in 19 Wing Comox be unavailable.

Residents are requested to lodge a complaint directly by calling 250-363-5443 ext 51081.

This number may also be used for inquiries about Cyclone operations.

Other Military Operations

Occasionally there will be other military aircraft in the area, usually conducting training exercises. The Airport Authority does not know when they will be conducting these activities.

Canadian Forces Base Comox (commonly referred to as CFB Comox or 19 Wing) is a Canadian Forces Base located north northeast of Comox, Vancouver Island, British Columbia. It is primarily operated as an air force base by the Royal Canadian Air Force (RCAF). Its primary lodger unit is 19 Wing, commonly referred to as 19 Wing Comox.

19 Wing has two operational squadrons:

407 Maritime Patrol Squadron flying the Lockheed CP-140 Aurora; and 442 Transport and Rescue Squadron flying the CC-115 Buffalo fixed-wing and AgustaWestland CH-149 Cormorant rotary-wing aircraft.

CFB Comox serves as a forward operating base for temporary deployments of the McDonnell Douglas CF-18 Hornet fighter-interceptor.

Any noise complaints regarding military jets should be reported to 19 Wing by email at 19wingpublicaffairs@forces.gc.ca (M-F) or via telephone at 250-339-8201 (after hours).
